WHY ARE REFERENCE

Is that from a reliable source?

15% of enterprises experienced a sharp decline in sales in 2019 pandemic. This was a result of the economic downturn to shut their doors to the pandemic. More than half of enterprises (56%) considered the impact of the pandemic on their Communications Technology and Information Systems (CTIS) to be significant.

this is true?
Gut instinct!

60% of enterprises experienced an increase in sales via websites or apps due to the COVID-19 pandemic. This was a welcome profit during a difficult time for businesses when they had to shut their doors to the public. Along with that, it was interesting to find that more than half of enterprises (56%) consider the environmental impact when selecting Information and Communications Technology (ICT) services and equipment (CSO, 2022)

(1) HARVARD CITATIONS

(Author, Date) scattered throughout your report

HARVARD REFERENCING CITATION

- often referred to as the 'author/date' system
 - References in alphabetical order
 - DO NOT use numbering system
- It is a system: ...in which names and dates are given in the body of the text (SETU, 2024)

CITATION: appears IN your report

HARVARD REFERENCING CITATION

... according to 30% of the students (SETU, 2024)

- You ONLY include two pieces of info: Author and Date:
 1. the authors surname(s) OR business/organization name and
 2. the year of publication

- EXAMPLES:

...announced plans to deliver two new veterinary schools with one located at SETU (gov.ie, 2024)

... as recently reported (Irish Farmers Journal, 2022)

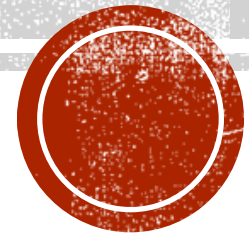

... compared to previous statistics (Cahill, 2014)

... an increase of 24% (The National Biodiversity Data Centre, 2020)

... part of its upcoming Sustainability Week 2022 (Teagasc, 2022)

(2) (HARVARD) REFERENCE LIST

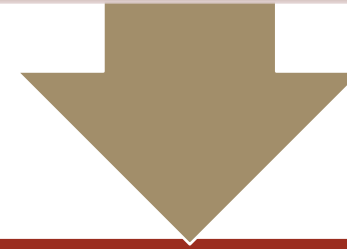

WHAT IS A REFERENCE LIST

Full reference details are needed to correspond with each citation

the result = a complete reference for each work that you (the researcher) has consulted and/or referred.

consists only of those works specifically referred to (i.e. what you have used) in the text

Resources and Publications

National Biodiversity Data Centre has developed diverse work programme that is supported by a state-of-the-art bioinformatics infrastructure and a small but dedicated team of staff. The work programme of the centre can be divided up into several main project areas.

Since its establishment in 2007, the National Biodiversity Data Centre has developed into an essential component of the national heritage infrastructure to make information on Ireland's biodiversity more accessible for decision-making, to assist engagement by both the public and private sectors with biodiversity and to support the conservation of biological diversity in Ireland. It achieves this through a diverse
